- I. Read the passage given below and choose the correct option :

Trees are an essential part of our environment. They provide oxygen, which humans and animals need to breathe, and help clean the air by absorbing harmful gases like carbon dioxide.

Trees also offer shade, reduce noise and provide homes for many animals. Additionally, the roots of the tree hold soil in place, which prevents erosion and helps maintain the land.

Forests, where many trees grow together, are often called the “lungs of the earth” because of the large amount of oxygen they produce. Protecting and planting more trees is important for maintaining a healthy environment and a balanced ecosystem.
